| 7         | Agriculture - Zootech                                    | EU Regulation 2016/1012 replaces a host of current zootech regulations by species from 1 November 2018. For the purpose of this exercise we treat the EU position as it will be at 1 November 2018 as the relevant framework. The EU rules support trade of pedigree breeding animals and germinal products by e.g. defining what constitutes "purebred". They provide for individual breed societies to be officially recognised and breeding programmes to be approved by competent authorities. The rules impose rights and obligations on societies and proscribe rules when breeding animals and germinal products are traded between recognised breed societies across the EU.
